Material information

Aluminium doors and windows have regained in popularity since the turn of the 21st century. Aluminium is now the optimum material for manufacturing doors and windows. It is widely specified by architects for most serious new build and refurbishment projects. Aluminium doors require very little maintenance, just a wipe with a damp cloth when needed and a regular check to ensure they are kept free from grit and small stones. Aluminium is more resistant to the elements than uPVC and is not likely to warp or rot.

Safety & security

KAT Aluminium Entrance Doors are fitted with a 3-star diamond rated security cylinder with Kitemark and Sobinco 5 point lock to keep your home safe.

The door system is 72mm front to back and the door slab itself is reinforced with glue laminated composite material, thermal insulation and finished with extremely robust aluminium skin throughout.

PAS24:2016 enhanced security is provided as standard.
